Some work has been done on the curling rink, such as leveling the ground preparatory for the curling season. All things are in order for Jack Frost to come along, but if this mild weather continues there will be no curling this year. However, there is no need to worry.

An air line from Ponoka to BC is contemplated.

Several parties of big game hunters left for the north last week. They intend to occupy their time in trapping till the season opens.

Several auction sales are being held in this community, and prices are ruling very fair on the whole.

The south bridge and road are in need of repair, but the question is—who are responsible for the work, town or government?

R. W. McWilliam is at present on a vacation. He is enjoying in and around Edmonton, and his friends are looking for his return all decked up in wreaths of smiles.

DE SPRUELEARE.—On Tuesday, October 19th, to Mr and Mrs Cyril De Sprueleare, a daughter.

A Halloween social will be given in the Baptist church Friday evening. A good programme, and a full house is looked for.

Road work is claiming the farmers' attention at present, and some extensive work is on hand, more especially on the route east of town. This should be good news, as the highways are in a deplorable condition, and a drawback to our whole community. The several councillors are not to blame, labor is so high that it has been almost impossible to get anything done. The township line east is very bad, and a big outlay must be made before it is in anything like shape. Not only are the farmers handicapped with their hauling operations, but the town is suffering in trade so it is up to all classes—farmer and townsman—to acclaim the glad tidings that the highways leading to our modern zion are being made smooth.

Henry Dick is holding an auction sale of horses and cattle on November 10th. Full particulars in posters.

Any parties having machine repair work to be done in the near future had better bring it in right away, as we intend closing down for the winter months, in about three weeks from now. Also, a few "spendulicks" from those who happen to owe us would be thankfully received. Yours for a holiday,

HERB. J. REES,

Does the Untutored Redman See Beyond the Veil?

A Remarkable Prophecy by Ki-Nis-Tin a Powerful Indian Chief, and its Sequel.

By O.G.E.-MAS-ES (Little Chief).

(Copyrighted)

In the office, Albert Herd of the Ponoka Press, there is an interesting paper, as to a Lac la Ronge Indian, who foretold his death to the day. A week in advance, though apparently quite well at the time of his death, which may interest here in the old days which may interest here in the old days.

Ki-Nis-Tin was by far and away the leading Indian in this locality when he settled here in 1885 and a man of very strong character. He had a following of some fourteen braves amongst whom, his eight sons were notable as fine big men, skilful hunters, and splendid shots, and they were all armed at that time with repeating Winchester. Ki-Nis-Tin purchased all supplies, and all furs from his band and personally transacted all his business; his trade alone had practically enriched Zavelo Patcho, who was his favorite trader. At that time he was not on friendly terms with the Hudson's Bay Company, towards whom he was a grudge, as parties who had sold the Indians birchbark.

On several occasions he gave me warning that I was trespassing on his hunting grounds by setting down on my old farm and warned me to leave before worse would happen. I made several attempts to get on terms with him but it was not until the year 1887 that I was successful, and we finally reached a treaty, the first white man, he informed me, that had been honored by his friendship.

Neither he or his small band had accepted the treaty with the Government. In fact, being wealthy in horses, furs and supplies of all kinds, he looked on the $500 per annum (which each treaty Indian received from the Government) with contempt.

Ki-Nis-Tin had many chats with me by the camp fire, over the future of his band and what would become of them after his death. After having had pleasant and profitable trading relations with him for some years, one of the sons (sixty-five years of age) came in from their wintering camp at that time some twenty-five miles to the northeast, with an urgent message to me to come out at once. The month was February, weather cold and lots of snow. Packing up a small trading outfit I started back with the young Indians, and after reaching their main camp about noon on the third day out. As usual I was a guest of Ki-Nis-Tin and the customary trading had taken place between his people and me of the tepee and turning to me, said "You wonder why I want you to come here, my reply, I thought perhaps you were sick, so brought along my medicine chest."

He handed, said he never felt better but his time was growing short. "In what way?" I asked. "Well," he replied, "when I come out on my regular trips, just before they break into leaf, I will go to join my brethren." Still, I did not quite understand him, as he came to me and explained his meaning, and then he told me clearly and simply that he had received warning from the spirit world and that his death was near. He said at the time stated, "Early spring," I felt distressed as it was really cold, the old man; but that he was so very old, and he had no more to say. I would say, and apparently in perfect health. I endeavored to shake his hand and told him that I would do better but he simply refused to discuss the matter.

He was then on to say that I was the first white man he had ever made a friend of, and that he trusted me fully.

And had a grace, change to leave me. "Look at my children and followers, what will become of them when the old man dies? I am thinking deeply over the matter. I have decided to use my best to 'kick against the pricks'; the day of the Red Indian is gone; it will be for them to follow the white example of other bands; take the small government pension and become reserve Indians; but for myself, Ki-Nis-Tin will never take their trail money."

Here the old man stood up in the tepee, dropped his robe and stood upright before me; only a breech-clout covering his nakedness. A fine specimen of a savage, truly six feet in height, and handsome, aquiline features; a number of scars on his broad breast made by arrows and bullet wounds in old-time fights, with Blackfoot on the plains.

Pages, we call them, but the secrets of the other world, that noted seismist, like Sir Oliver Lodge and Cotton Doyle are now trying to explain to humanity, were no secrets to Ki-Nis-Tin as he was constantly in touch with the world of spirits and felt no fear; rather, in fact, rejoiced that he would soon join their numbers.

Now, he went on to say, "I want you after I am gone to get the land where our graves are, and where I made several attempts to get on terms with him but it was not until the year 1887 that I was successful, and we finally reached a treaty, the first white man, he informed me, that had been honored by his friendship."

Neither he or his small band had accepted the treaty with the Government. In fact, being wealthy in horses, furs and supplies of all kinds, he looked on the $500 per annum (which each treaty Indian received from the Government) with contempt.

CLEANLINESS IS HEALTH

By the use of Gillett's Lye, house cleaning is made a pleasure instead of a drudgery. It softens the water and cleans thoroughly whether the dirt is visible or invisible. Destroys all bacteria and infectious germs, removes obstructions from drain pipes, closets, sinks, etc. Refrigerators are made delightfully fresh and clean by using one teaspoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in two gallons of water.

"That all the cattle in Alberta may soon belong to the hornless variety is a possibility disclosed during a recent quarterly meeting of the Edmonton Livestock Exchange. The practice has been extensively followed in the United States.

DRAWING ON YOUR RESERVE STRENGTH

This is What Thousands of People Throughout the Country Are Doing.

Thousands of Canadian housewives are working from day to day on their nerves. They are daily drawing more and more on their reserve strength, and the result is that they are using up that vital force which often means life or death in the crisis of disease. In this condition a blood-purifying tonic is needed to restore the vitality and energy. For this purpose Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unsurpassed. Often the trouble will have progressed to a point which the treatment would be permanent and renewed health and activity will be the result.

Iceland Warmer Than England

Weather During Past Summer Has Been Unusual.

One of the current topics of conversation in England is the weather of the past summer. English never knew anything quite like it. Snow fell in Durham during July. Frost was twice reported in Oxfordshire in August. On the last day of August, in Manchester, a screened thermometer four feet above the ground recorded a temperature only three degrees above the freezing point. It now appears that while England was shivering the summer through, Iceland was enjoying the kind of weather that English wanted and did not get. On a day when the mercury recorded a temperature of fifty-four degrees in London, it was seventy-two in Northern Iceland—entirely inappropriate to an island of that name.

Germany Must Pay.

The French people of the French Government towards Germany is inspired by only one thought. Loyal execution of the solemn pact which put an end to the war is the sole means of solving practically the grave difficulties that still exist between the two countries. Germany's "last exultation" lies in paying. But Germany openly takes repudiation. It is to the advantage of France, and certainly to the joy of the rest of the world, that the French republic now has a head who is capable of laying a severe law and an inflexible policy upon the terms of a required acknowledgment. — Boston Transcript.
